WOMEN IN SCIENCE

A community forum to address gender inequity and build interdisciplinary unity across the academic sciences

Hosted by the Gender and Sexuality Equity Center (GSEC)

https://www.facebook.com/CofCGSEC/info

Wednesday, October 8th
5:30 - 7:00

Panelists will address how gender has played a role in the support they have received or obstacles they have faced in their careers. They will also reflect upon their efforts to deliberately diversify their fields through mentoring and strong peer support. Ultimately, we hope to encourage an open conversation about the relevance of gender dynamics in both the teaching of science and in our various professions.

Panelist Introductions by: Niki Patel (Undergraduate Biology Major) and Grace Tribble (Undergraduate Biology and Anthropology Major)
